Want to become a Sustainable DC Ambassador?

We are looking for enthusiastic Sustainable DC Ambassadors—volunteers from every part of the District—to help spread the word on how Sustainable DC can be a resource for all residents and communities in the District.

What Does an Ambassador Do?

- Attend community events such as neighborhood meetings, festivals, block parties, farmers markets.
- Talk to people about Sustainable DC and how they can get involved.
- Act as a sustainability liaison. Help Sustainable DC staff better understand what people are most concerned about and excited about.
- Be a community resource. Learn or hone leadership, teamwork, and community organizing skills.
- Learn the specifics of sustainability in the District: creative programs, new policies, and innovative new projects.

What is the Commitment?

- Attend at least one event per month between April and October (shifts are typically 2-3 hours).
- Participate in a required Ambassador orientation at DOEE or an offsite location (date and offsite location to be determined).

What are the Benefits?

- Ambassadors participate in an orientation offered by Sustainable DC staff.
- Community service and connection!
- It’s FUN! There are many exciting events throughout the season and being an Ambassador gives you the opportunity to enjoy any number of them.
- A free t-shirt!
- Expanding your network! Ambassadors meet people they might not otherwise meet.
